Here's Preview of Gala Floor Show, Feature of Yule Dance Monday

Mansfield girls will "go into their dance" Monday night at the Coliseum as their contribution to the Christmas baskets, flashing through the midnight show on twinkling toes and in shimmering costumes.

Two of them will be seen in specialty numbers; Mary Van Arnheim, at the upper extreme left, who frequently sings and dances at her father's night club, Van's Tavern, will be presented in a song and dance number, and Martha Metcalfe, (beside Miss Van Arnheim) will show the audience how easy it is to dance around on your toes.

In the center is Marquerite Speas, Mansfield dance teacher, who will lead her chorus. In the picture at the lower left is a group of young women from the Marty Hogan dance studio who are not thumbing a ride but merely "doin' the Lambeth Walk, Oi!" Left to right they are Elinor Hattman, Lucille Antrican, Louise Walker, June Ford, Mary Hyman, Norma Howell, Esther Pfaff and Miss Van Arnheim.

Promise New Sensation in Musica Case

Federal Investigators Push Inquiry On Reports "Coster" Helped Finance South American War, Smuggled War Materials To Spain.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(UP)—Federal authorities revealed today that others "just as important" as Philip Musica were involved in the scandal of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., the big drug firm which was developed by swindlers with prison records.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Still more sensational disclosures of the incredible web of international financial intrigue spun by F. Donald Coster, the wizard whose magic failed him, were forecast today with ten investigations seeking to unravel the tangled skein.

The breath-taking developments yesterday, climaxed when Coster ended his two-lives-in-one by firing a bullet into his brain, indicated that the suspected milking of the $87,000,000 McKesson & Robbins Drug company of $18,000,000 in assets was only one of his many far-flung extra-legal activities.

Investigators pushed inquiries into reports that Coster, really Philip Musica, an Italian-born immigrant and ex-convict, had, as head of the world's third largest wholesale drug concern, helped finance one South American war and assisted in smuggling arms to Spain in violation of the neutrality act.

So significant did this development appear to Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall that he abruptly adjourned the state's investigation until Monday in order to study the case.

"The attorney general has obtained information of the wholesale sale of arms and ammunition which may involve living persons," he said. He refused to amplify the statement.

Sought Quinine Monopoly.

The U. S. attorney's office also disclosed it had begun an inquiry into reports that Coster had helped finance Bolivia in its war with Paraguay over the Chaco boundary in return for a promise of a quinine monopoly.

Further furore accompanied the disclosure that papers connected with an indictment against Coster-Musica 18 years ago were missing from the office of the chief clerk of the general sessions court here.

The missing documents were indictments, filed against Coster, then known under his real name of Musica, for forging of evidence and bribery of a witness in a murder case, in 1920. The indictments later were dismissed.

Eight other inquiries were under way into the labyrinthine affairs of the self-slain business titan and those of his three brothers, all connected with the drug company and each held under $100,000 bail.

The agencies and what they are investigating:

1. U. S. postal authorities, seeking to learn whether manipulators of the drug company's supplies had used the mails to defraud.

2—The securities and exchange commission, which Regional Director James J. Caffry said had failed to locate a nickel's worth of the $18,000,000 "assets" in the firm's raw drugs department.

3—The income tax division of the Canadian revenue department. It issued writs of conservatory attachment against assets of Canadian affiliates of McKesson and Robbins.

4—U. S. Bureau of Internal revenue, conducting a sweeping inquiry into the drug firm's income tax payments. A shortage of $77,146 in income tax payments for 1931 has been charged.

5—The alcohol unit of the U. S. treasury. Agents in Hartford, Conn., are checking to uncover possible violations of the alcohol tax act.

6—The U. S. Department of Agriculture. An accusation that the drug company had violated pure food and drug laws by selling sub-standard quinine tablets started company officials on the inquiry which led to Coster's downfall.

7—A New York stock exchange committee, which began probing trading in the drug firm's securities.

8—The office of District Attorney Thomas F. Dewey. Grand jury proceeding in New York county were expected to follow.

As Coster, hopelessly trapped in a web that tangled him ever

Woman Hurled From Car In Crash, Dies

68-Year-Old Housekeeper Falls In Street When Car Door Jars Open as Machine Strikes Curb Rounding Corner.

Thrown out of an automobile when it struck the curb and the door latch was jarred open, Mrs. Minnie Warne, 68-year-old housekeeper, today became Richland county's 23rd traffic victim of the year and the third to be recorded so far this month. At this time last year 27 persons had been killed in traffic accidents.

Mrs. Warne died in the General hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday, three hours after the accident. Dr. Hugh C. Winbigler, Richland county coroner, said death was due to chest injuries. She also had several fractured ribs and a fractured leg.

Police said Mrs. Warne was riding in an automobile driven by her widowed employer, Frank Jewell, 362 Ninth avenue, when the accident occurred. He escaped injury.

Jewell told Police Lieut. Bruce Friday that his car struck the west curbing on North Adams street as he was making a left turn off Orange street. He said that the door of his 1931 model machine flew open at the force of the impact and Mrs. Warne toppled to the pavement.

PUMP WORKERS GET $100 BONUS

Gorman-Rupp Firm Distributes Yule Checks For Third Consecutive Year.

Another Mansfield industrial plant today announced payment of a Christmas bonus to its employes. The firm is the Gorman-Rupp company, manufacturers of pumps.

The company, according to an announcement by J. C. Gorman, president, has paid bonuses of $100 to each employe who has been with the company more than a year and proportionate bonuses to those employed since Jan. 1. The company has 23 employes. The bonus payment was made Thursday.

Last July the company gave each employe a week's pay in the form of a mid-year bonus. Gorman said the company also has matched the savings of each employe, under a plan which calls for workers to save three per cent of their wages or salaries, with the company contributing a similar amount.

Gorman said the company expected business to be improved in 1939, explaining that the company has developed a new and improved pump which will enable it to enter three new fields of sales. This pump is to be put in production shortly.

Payment of this week's bonus marks the third consecutive year the company has made such a year-end payment to employes.

Test Forts, Decide Italians Would Have Hard Time If They Attacked City.

(By United Press)

OASIS OF GABES, Tunis—High French military authorities were convinced today, after three days of combined army and air force maneuvers, that the defense system of Tunisia is almost impregnable against an Italian attack.

The maneuvers were said to have shown that any Tunisian oasis could be converted into a fortress against attacks by air or sea. This oasis is typical of all. In the maneuvers here, Tunisian and several thousand Senegalese infantrymen, hundreds of crack Spahi cavalrymen and many aviation technicians took part.

READY TO OPEN

Windsor Cut-Off Barriers Due To Come Down Sunday.

The federal government today had put its approval on the completed section of the Windsor cut-off on route 42 and it was expected the road would be open Sunday.

Boyd Wierman, resident state highway engineer, said workmen were putting "finishing touches" on the project today.

Nearly a mile of the cut-off, which is 3.59 miles long, will not be given its final surfacing until next spring to avoid the necessity of one-way traffic over the route during the winter.

Coliseum to Be Busy Spot Next 2 Days

If you hear sounds at the Coliseum Sunday afternoon that remind you of a rehearsal for a stage show—don't get excited. It will be the Muster-Cheer floor show, going through its paces in final dress rehearsal for the big Christmas ball Monday night.

And if you hear enough noise there Monday morning to make you think they're tearing the Coliseum down, don't get excited then, either. They won't be—they'll just be setting up the flood lights, the boxes and the decorations for the big event—the event that is to provide the money to buy the food to fill the Christmas baskets for Mansfield's needy families.

In case there are a few who don't know all about the ball, it's to be at the Coliseum Monday night—one of the biggest crowds ever to attend a dance is expected—the floor show goes on at 11 p. m., and it's going to be the biggest and best thing you ever saw.

Two can matiness this morning added greatly to the stock of food the Muster-Cheers have already collected for the Christmas baskets for the city's needy. At the Ritz, 750 youngsters saw a picture show for a can of food, and 400 more went to the Park. Altogether, the Muster-Cheers now have about 1,600 cans from can matinees.

Tickets for the Christmas ball are still available, and the places where they are on sale are listed in an advertisement on Page 5 today. If you haven't got yours yet, better get them—then you won't have to stand in line Monday night.

1,000 Brave Cold To Join In Singing Yule Carols In Park

Nearly 1,000 Mansfielders braved the cold for an hour last night to sing Christmas carols and listen to a musical program in the city's annual community sing in Central park.

Amid the park's holiday decorations, Charles Conklin led the singing of several of the most popular Christmas songs as the words were flashed on a screen from lantern slides.

Solos were sung by Miss Jane Weuthrick, Mrs. Elizabeth Hoffman, David Weimer and George Porterfield. Mrs. Hoffman sang "Silent Night, Holy Night" in German.

Eugene Smart's brass choir and a brass octet from the high school band played a number of Christmas carols which were broadcast through a public address system. The Junior high school choir, directed by Miss Fannie Lew Eiler, sang five numbers.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter gave the introduction, praising the Retail Merchants association for its work in decorating the downtown area for Christmas.

"I have been in a number of cities recently and none of them had decorations to compare with ours here in Mansfield," the mayor said.

Rev. James L. Boyer, pastor of the First United Brethren church, gave the invocation.

A program of Christmas carols will be broadcast over the down-

Pan-American Envoys Study U. S. Proposal

Plan, Termed 'Declaration of Lima,' Calls for Co-Operation In Trade, Common Defense In Event of War Against Aggressors.

(By United Press)

LIMA, Peru—A United States compromise proposal calling for continental solidarity and united defense against an outside aggressor was circulated today among delegates to the eighth Pan-American conference. The proposal was a revision of one drafted by the Argentine delegation.

It was understood that the United States draft was called the "declaration of Lima" and that it was divided into two parts, the first dealing with collaboration and co-operation for development of trade, cultural and other peaceful relations, the second concerning common defense against an aggressor.

Wants Full Approval.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull sought to obtain unanimous consent to any final draft before a resolution was presented to the conference formally, feeling that if there were any objections from even one nation the resolution could hardly be one of real continental solidarity.

As today was the final day for submitting such projects to the conference, United States delegates hoped to obtain approval today.

POSTOFFICE SET FOR YULE RUSH

28 Men, 3 Trucks to Be Added Monday to Handle Record Christmas Business.

The Mansfield postoffice today completed preparations for handling the annual Christmas mailing rush beginning Monday, which is expected to be the largest in the history of the office.

To handle this business, 28 additional men and three extra trucks will be added to the present postal force, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said.

Sixteen of the extra men will serve as clerks at the postoffice, and 12 will be assigned to parcel post trucks. Three state highway trucks will be used in addition to the four regular postal trucks to deliver packages.

Packages are being mailed unusually early this year, Homberger said, pointing out that the number of outgoing and incoming parcels already has shown a large in-

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Vice President and Mrs. John Nance Garner arrived in the capital this morning from their home in Uvalde, Tex. Garner declined to comment on the legislative outlook for the coming session of congress when questioned at union station by reporters.

It was believed that the vice president would participate in legislative strategy conferences with President Roosevelt before congress convenes Jan. 3.

KEPT SECRET

Mrs. Hahn's Letters Placed In Hands of Agent.

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Defense attorney Joseph Hoodin refused today to confirm or deny reports that Ann Marie Hahn, electrocuted poison slayer, confessed crimes charged to her, in letters soon to be published.

Although several Ohio newspapers announced they have obtained publication rights to the letters, Hoodin was vague about the details. He said the letters were in the hands of an agent.

Hoodin also declined to reveal the sale price of the letters.

WASHINGTON: Link High Public Officials With Swindler

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Conclusive evidence linking a well-known national political figure and a group of Connecticut state legislators with the sensational activities of "F. Donald Coster," late head of the defunct McKesson and Robbins Drug company, and in reality Philip Musica, longtime swindler, has been found by federal investigators.

A high ranking enforcement chief today revealed a number of public officials are under investigation.

Among those who will be questioned is an incumbent member of congress from Texas who has been prominent in the Washington political scene.

This member is reported to have made 47 speeches in support of federal legislation favored by the McKesson and Robbins company. For each speech, this representative is said to have received a fee of $100.

Payments made to this representative are shown on the books of the company. Agents came across these disbursements while examining company records impounded by the federal court at New York.

"We have found entries on the books that certain payments were made but we have not found any cancelled checks to match these payments," one of the enforcement officers said.

Information that members of the Connecticut state legislature also were "employed" by the company is in the hands of federal investigators. The company's headquarters are in Bridgeport, Conn., and many of its officers are residents of Connecticut.

IN BRIEF: Here's Status of Quiz In Musica's Swindle Empire

(By Associated Press)

Three Musica brothers, Arthur, George and Robert, were held under $100,000 bail each today on charges of violating the federal securities act. The fourth brother, Philip, who as F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson and Robbins, was the directing head of the family's fantastic financial operations, lay dead in Connecticut, a suicide.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Ambrose V. McCall said information had been uncovered of the wholesale sale of arms and ammunition which may involve living persons.

The postoffice department began an investigation of the case; in all, ten inquiries were under way.

Philip Musica (Coster) was identified in New York as a World war spy investigator who used the name "William Johnson," and files of the senate judiciary committee in Washington disclosed that former Sen. James A. Reed of Missouri had exposed "Johnson" as Musica in 1919.

Correspondence between Musica-Coster and Harry E. McKenzie was seized in Bridgeport, Conn. MacKenzie recently pleaded guilty in a Waterbury, Conn., municipal fraud conspiracy.

McKesson and Robbins securities hit a new low in "over the counter" trading.

Two Musica sisters, prominent in the family's flight after the 1913 hair company scandal, were located by police; Louise as the wife of a gardener on the estate of Henry Morgenthau, jr., secretary of the treasury; Grace at Westbury, Long Island, where she was known as Marie Girard.

Praises Strict Parents

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'd like to use a small space in your column. I read it most every day, and often wonder whether to feel sorry for some of the girls or laugh at them. They complain of "strict parents," and say they are not allowed to lead a "whoopee life," and smoke and drink. Oh, how I envy them! I wish I could exchange places with them for a week; they'd be glad to go back to their strict parents.

All the men in my family smoke, swear and drink. I see enough liquor to hate the sight of it. I don't see why some girls crave this sort of life. If it weren't for my wonderful mother and her high ideals, I could not have graduated from high school. My father doesn't care what I do.

UNHAPPY DAUGHTER

It's a blessing that this girl has a kind and understanding mother, for she evidently has suffered much. I often wonder if girls who complain of "strict parents" really don't often feel a little pride in their parents. If a girl uses a little diplomacy and tact, and a little common sense, she can bring her parents around to her way of thinking, as a rule.

This is the way to wash your upholstery: Dissolve one cup of shaved mild soap or some soap powder in four cups of boiling water; cool, then beat with an egg beater until fluffy. Dip a small, clean brush into the fluff and scrub a small area of the upholstery at a time. Wipe the suds off quickly with a clean cloth, then rinse thoroughly with another cloth frequently wrung out in clean water. (Change this water often). Wipe as dry as possible with soft cloth.

Apple balls make an unusual Christmas garnish. Cook one-inch apple balls until tender in sugar syrup colored red or green. Use them for touching up appetizers, salads or dessert or for garnishing the turkey platter or vegetable dishes. You might color some green and some red and alternate them when decorating.

Piquant Tid-Bits For Table

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

"The Night Before Christmas" is the conventional time for hanging the stock over the fireplace (or even over the gas or electric stove), but wise homemakers get their socks filled up ahead of time, filled up with new menu ideas and recipes. While the rest of the family lights candles, hangs up the mistletoe and gets poised to stick thumbs in plum puddings, it is the home-maker who has to strive to live up to all those great food expectations of the holiday season.

The regular Yuletide menu, from the fruit cup through to the cranberry sauce, is something that is pretty familiar to all of us, so we are glad to offer a few suggestions to give holiday menus a new zip. They are ideal for any party of the holiday season. First of all, for a delicious fruit cup arrange grapefruit segments around sides of a sherbet glass, with thin slices of red apple between. Pile tangerine segments in center and top this healthful cup with sprig of fresh mint.

Cheese Croutons.

Cheese croutons in a clear soup offer a pleasant alternative to the usual heavy creamed soup. To make the croutons, cut stale bread in one-eighth-inch slices, spread thinly with softened butter and creamed American cheese. Cut with round cutter one and one-half inches in diameter and fry in deep fat at 375 F. until delicately browned.

Tangerine cranberry jelly will add a new note to the turkey. It takes a quart of cranberries, three cups water, two and one-half cups sugar, one-quarter cup lemon juice, two cups tangerine sections, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one envelope plain unflavored gelatine and one cup cold water. Cook cranberries in water until soft. Force through strainer. Add sugar, lemon juice, tangerine sections, salt and bring to a boil. Soften gelatine in cold water and add to hot mixture, stirring until gelatine dissolves. Cool and freeze.

Pumpkin Tarts.

Orange pumpkin tarts offer a nice variation on the pumpkin pie theme. To serve 12 you will require two and one-quarter cups cooked pumpkin, one and one-half cups brown sugar, three-eighths teaspoon salt, one and one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon, one and one-half cups evaporated milk, three beaten eggs, one-quarter teaspoon mace, one and one-half teaspoon vanilla, three-quarters cup fresh orange juice and one and one-half teaspoons grated orange rind. Line small pie pans with rich pastry, building up the edges about one-half inch. Chill. Mix the ingredients in the order listed and turn into pastry shells. Bake at 425 F. for 25 minutes or until custard is firm.

Holiday fruit logs are grand nibbling! One package dates, one and one-third cups shredded cocoanut, one-half cup nutmeats, three-quarters cup dried apricots, one-quarter pound figs, one tablespoon orange juice and one teaspoon orange rind will make one and one-quarter pounds. Chop dates, cocoanut, nut meats, apricots and figs, or run all through food chopper. Knead in orange juice. Divide fruit paste in halves. Roll into long strips one-half inch in diameter. Roll in toasted cocoanut or chopped nuts cut into one-inch logs. Tie each log with red ribbon.

Cherry Red Satin Tops Parka Hood

HERE are Christmas gifts for the girl to whom winter means ice and snow sports. The red wool sweater is knitted with a ribbed stitch in front and finished with a high turtle neck. The white wool mittens have long cuffs to keep out snow and the soft angora hood is trimmed with a cherry red satin bow.

Hair Dyeing Still Hazardous

By MME. QUI VIVE

The most ticklish job done at beauty emporium is hair dyeing. This work requires long training, a thorough knowledge of the action of chemicals, the kind of a conscience that keeps one awake at night. There are beauty operators, usually men, who do this work and nothing else. The results of their treatments are satisfactory. We can't say that for the home attempt or work done by unskilled workers.

If the home job is attempted, be sure to make a test. Cut off a lock of hair, treat it, see how it looks several days later. Much misery can be saved. And don't fail to follow directions to the dot.

Coloring agents come in different forms. There are instantaneous liquids, some preparations that call for a fixative. Others, like henna, are made into packs which must remain on the head until the right shade appears. A short period produces a slight change, a longer one brings a more decided color.

Once dye is on the hair it is almost impossible to remove it. Hot oil treatments help some cases. Dye removers must be used with extreme caution so that the shafts of the hair are not weakened. Home made hair dyes are hazardous.

Let the do-or-die beauty seeker keep in mind that hair pushes out to the length of five or six inches a year, so she will need frequent touch ups. Unless she can afford professional attentions she will be wise to accept the silver threads, bear with them. They are often a beauty asset.

so they won't glare in your guest's eyes.

In all but the most formal homes it is a good idea to have the first course on the table when your guests sit down. Place suitable plates or cups—or both—for your fruit juice, soup or whatever you have planned for the first course in the center of each cover.

Knives and spoons go to the right of each cover, forks to the left. The pieces of silver to be used first are on the outside, those to be used last nearest the plate. Knives are closest to the plate on the right—with spoons on the outside.

There are two exceptions to the silverware rule: Oyster forks are placed to the right of any knives or spoons at the right of the cover.

Butter Spreaders.

The second exception is the butter spreader. Bread and butter plates are never placed on formal tables. When they are used on semi-formal tables, however, they go just above the forks, at the left of the cover. The butter spreader is placed slantwise across the right rim of each butter plate, the sharper edge turned away from the center of the table.

It's a good idea to bring dessert forks and spoons and coffee spoons to the table when you serve dessert and coffee. If you have coffee during the meal you'll want large cups—and teaspoons. But if you wait until the end of the meal you may serve small (demi-tasse) cups with coffee spoons to go with them.

Altitude Record Not Effective In Table Decoration

By JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer.

If you want to be sure your Christmas dinner table is properly appointed, set it before you start out to enjoy the Christmas Eve festivities.

Get out your best tablecloth and place it so the center crease runs exactly down the middle of the table. If possible, arrange it so that it hangs ten or twelve inches over the edge of the table. Dinner-size napkins—twenty-seven inches square—should match it.

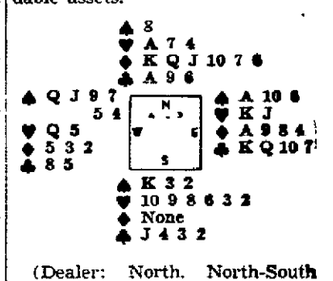
Don't let your enthusiasm for holiday centerpieces run away with you. If the one you've prepared is so high people can't see over it when they're seated, either take out the tall sections or remove the centerpiece altogether. If you use candles be sure the flames are well above eye level

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT IS A GOOD HAND?

Answering that question correctly depends upon the circumstances. Many a holding which would be worthless as a dummy is valuable if its owner is declarer at its longest suit. A partner with a fair amount of high card strength and a moderate fit for the trumps can turn mere long suits of small cards into very valuable assets.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

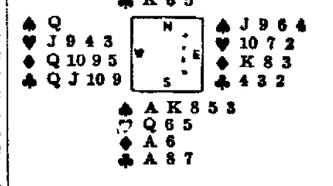
One diamond was North's opening bid on this deal and East overcalled with a 1-No Trump. South passed and West bid 2-spades. North rebid his diamonds at the three level and East bid 3-Spades. South and West passed and North bid 4-Diamonds.

When East failed to put in another bid, South was in a quandary. He feared the consequences of the 4-Diamond bid because his hand provided no entries for his partner. However, with a vulnerable partner bidding and rebidding with no encouragement, South decided to gamble on 4-Hearts, figuring the damage could be no worse than at 4-Diamonds.

West led the spade Q which East won with the A. He returned the club K to the A. Declarer led the diamond K and tossed a club when East failed to cover. This was followed with the Q. East held off again and another club was discarded. When the J was covered, South ruffed and led to the Heart A. He then gave up a heart and a club.

* * *

Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the club Q led against his contract of 4-Spades, how should South plan the hand?

Diary of a Fashion Model

Smart and Practical.

* * *

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I'll have to get after that gift list of mine. I want to get everything done by the first of the week. I sent off the presents for Pam's children so that there are no more long-distance gifts to send.

Pam and Ken get here tomorrow and it will be good to see them. Consuelo's mother and her brother and his wife are here. And you can just imagine how happy she is! They saw her show and just loved it. It certainly has gone over with a bang and every seat has been sold out for the holidays. We had to scurry round to get seats for Phyllis' brother and for Guido and his wife. We finally did manage to get all we wanted so there is to be a big theater party on Christmas eve.

Nice Displays.

Despite the beautiful weather, everything is looking like good old Yuletide and the shops have never had nicer displays. I have been rushing round with my lists and, busy as I have been, I have had to spend my time glued to the windows looking at the glorious displays. Monday and the day after I am going out shopping with Madame, which means that we'll be in the car and so I ought to get a lot done. I am splurging on a gift for Bill. I'm getting him a set of pigskin luggage, a pullman case, a wardrobe case, a small dressing bag and a hat and shoe box. It is very expensive, it is true, but it is worthwhile.

I bought a great many things in Europe this year so part of my list has been settled. But I want to get nice gifts for my people, for Consuelo, for Dodo, for Don and Guido and their wives. Of course, the present for Guido will have to be something extra special, for it is a wedding gift as well. I'll talk it over with Madame when we are out together, for she always has such marvelous ideas.

I've been wearing this smart but practical coat to save my good coat while in the crowded stores. It is in deep bordeaux woolen with striped fabric used for the collar border and for the buttons, also for the patch pocket trim. The seaming on the bodice continues down to form side pleats on the skirt. It is part of an ensemble for the striped fabric is used for a dress.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Will I ever catch them?" she queried, dashing at me and enveloping me in one of her breathless hugs. "Watch me! Just watch me!" she implored. "And tell me now just what you want me to do."

"Nothing except entertain Noel and keep him contented and happy until I give you the signal that I'm 'going into action'."

She looked at me with sudden mischief in her eyes.

"I'll tell you what," she said. "Wrinkle your nose at me. Always when you do that, you have something amusing in the offing."

"It may be anything but amusing, Mary," I warned her. "But I think it may interest Noel, provided he's in the right mood."

Her eyes clouded perceptibly.

"Ah! that's the trouble," she said ruefully. "'The right mood!' I wonder if he'll ever be in 'the right mood' as long as I—"

She broke off abruptly and went to the door, waving me an airy farewell.

"But I'll do my little best," she promised, and opened the door upon the word. When she had closed it after her, and there was no more need for me to pretend nonchalance, I lay back upon my pillows and gave myself up to morbid, anxious fears for the morrow, and futile regrets that I ever had planned this scheme of giving Mary and Noel a secret reunion.

It did not take long before the magazine dropped from my hand to the floor, and the resultant mental jolt sent my hand to the lamp switch to turn it off. A minute or two of delicious drowsiness and I was sound asleep, to awaken only at the tinkle of my alarm clock which I had put within easy reach of my hand.

I snapped the alarm off before it reached the shrill stage, and then wakened myself gradually with "stretching exercises." Then I reached for the telephone and ordered breakfast to be sent up in half an hour. By the time it came I was showered, dressed for the street and thoroughly awake. I breakfasted a bit more amply than is my custom, scanned the morning papers, and then, donning my hat, went down to the street, turning in the direction of the nearest branch postoffice.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Dec. 18.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very interesting and intriguing one, with much of a devastating nature forecast in both the private and business associations. It spells upheaval and surprising and perplexing adventures, with probably a tinge of the romantic and dramatic. Affairs of social and emotional incitement call for new environs, arranged probably by secrecy or subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of thrilling adventure with sudden change, dramatic experiences and devastating reaction in business and in the social and sentimental life. Unpredictable events demand change.

A child born on this day may be romantic, adventurous and audacious, as well as being fond of change, thrills and the romantic. It may also love intrigue.

For Monday, Dec. 19.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a lively and expansive day. At the same time, there is prospect of much conflict or adversity. There may be setbacks and hazards in finances through unwise or speculative maneuvers. But new contracts are under benefic sway, and friends and employers should be helpful.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of contradictions. Much may be gained through new contracts and advantageous change or travel, but not without disappointment or some form of frustration or obstruction. Much depends on acumen, good judgment and the help of friends. Be very careful in speculation and all manner of chances or gambles.

A child born on this day may be energetic, versatile and ambitious, gaining the recognition of those in position or power. It may be assisted over difficult places and depression by friendly co-operation.

CHAPTER 25

Water motion had separated them a bit, so that he had to alter his course. He was a little winded from his run, and rather than risk exhaustion at the critical moment, he floated for a few seconds and breathed deeply, relaxing. Strength poured back into him, and he plowed on.

"IT'S ALL RIGHT!" he yelled. "DON'T CRY! Help is coming!"

A grateful, childish, tremolo answered. In the next instant, cold little hands grabbed him. Grabbed him wildly, clutching, shaking grasping.

Treading, and occasionally touching bottom with extended toe, Thornton took hold of her. "It's all right, honey; don't be afraid now." He tried to soothe her, but the sobbing grew louder.

* * *

He held the small form high for a moment, so that she could feel a sense of security at last, could get a free breath of needed air. But in that instant, too, the undertow snatched at his legs, and he had to level off with her.

"Don't fight me, honey! Lie still. Lie still, face up. I'll swim us in. Don't grab and fight—don't DON'T!"

Thornton Holgate was at home in water. He knew many tricks there. He knew that drowning people often would drown those who would save them. And yet—he couldn't bring himself to strike this little girl. It probably would have been wise to have struck her, to have knocked her senseless and so towed her in for prompt first aid. But a little girl—

He grasped her by the hair with his left hand, held her at arm's length, keeping her face up as best he could, and set out for shore. A good push from a wave, caught just right, would carry them to safety, he hoped.

* * *

But the scared child was stronger than he knew. Frantically she swerved her body onto his—and both of them went under.

She was almost as tall as he was, he discovered. And she clung, arms and legs, with incredible strength now. He was down on the sand, submerged with her, first rolling, then struggling, fighting for release. Having gone under unexpectedly, he gulped a huge mouthful of water, which sickened him.

With her still clinging, though, he gave a mighty heave of his legs and brought both of them to the surface again. A wave promptly crashed over them, rolled them. He touched bottom with his hand, and tried to jerk his legs free. He felt the never-ceasing undertow drag at him, hard. Worse still, when he did manage to protrude his head again, the child's hysterical mother was there clutching at him!

Thornton Holgate began to have visions then.

He caught a watery glimpse of Hotel Galvez, looming high and beautiful above the shore line. He saw the graceful curves of a roller coaster in the amusement grounds. And over it all was a mental montage of acquaintances, relatives, friends.

"NO!" he shrieked.

* * *

He was not hysterical himself, but he was frightened. He was not exhausted, but he had a strong sense of futility. The salt was burning his lungs and his eyes. The child hung on his legs—he swerved them up, in a tremendous effort, to give her at least one breath of air—and a screaming woman now was grasping at him.

"No!" he shrieked again. "Don't scream! Don't fight!"

The woman still had on her coat, he saw. She had waded and fought her way out—not that he could blame her—until she, too, was in six-foot water. Thornton glanced at the pier. He hadn't gained a yard! Any progress he had made toward shore had been off-set by action of the undertow. "TRY TO STAND with"— salt foam slapped in his mouth, drowning his words. He came out of it, spitting, spewing, fighting the woman.

"Oh, my God!" he groaned it; a prayer, not a profanity.

* * *

Robert Towne was a somewhat unhappy young man for two reasons. First, his rather juvenile rival, Worthington Gurley, had taken his girl to a dance. Second, his older and now equally (or more!) potent rival had walked into Sara Sue's cottage and taken her away, right under his nose. And to church, at that.

He didn't know what plans Sara Sue had for the afternoon. Normally a happy-go-lucky person, Bob was disposed to be gloomy when he left the Davis cottage at noon. But he was not licked. He planned to grab a bite of lunch, then go back to her cottage. He had entree always because he was a member of her social organization, for which he paid the regulation fee. But he also meant to camp on her personal doorstep until he got a date with her. Persistence was one of Bob Towne's assets.

He called at 1:20 and found her in. But she was also in bed.

"Take yo'self on away fum here, Mistuh Bob, suh," Cleopatra Jones ordered the young man. "You knows Miss Sara Sue got to have some sleep! I ain't gon' let no young man come courtin' her till she gits three hours sleep."

You couldn't budge black Cleo. Massive physically, she could also be a mental blockade, which is one reason why Sara Sue kept her. Calculus, her long and lanky husband, chuckled at the conversation.

"Mistuh T. J. cuttin' in on you, Mistuh Bob," Calculus informed the caller.

"You're telling me!" Bob grinned. "Calculus, I'll break your neck if you let Sanders hang around here."

"Yassuh. I knows you can do it, too. I sees you ran yo'self right through three tacklers at once Sat'day, unh UNH! I betcha you tears 'em up right on through the Mexico game, too, yas suh!"

Rice was to close her football season this year by playing the University of Mexico. Some authorities said Mexico was to be the biggest hurdle Rice faced. But Calculus had faith. He thought Bob Towne unconquerable, he secretly and openly admired him.

"Lemme tell you what—you come back here long about fo' p. m. and sweet-talk Miss Sara Sue. Betcha you gits a date, then."

"I'll do it, Calculus."

* * *

But he didn't quite connect at "fo' p. m." Sara Sue slept, shamefully, until almost 5 Calculus and Cleo had to side-track three telephone calls for her. But when she finally did come out of her bedroom, Bob was on deck, smiling, shining, whistling.

"For goodness sake, Bob Towne! Have you taken toot here?"

"It's an idea," he assured her.

She yawned at him.

"How was church?"

"Fine. Excellent sermon. And music. You ought to go. Once. New experiences broaden young college men, I'm told."

"I have another rare experience in mind. Very rare, for me."

"What?"

"Taking you downtown for dinner. An honest date with you. See?"

He spread his long legs, planted himself firmly in front of her. It was as if he dared her to refuse. His big square jaw protruded. He wasn't going to hear 'no.'

He needn't have worried.

"All right, Bob." She laughed gaily at him. "You're a dear! We'll go to dinner. I'm starved. Honest. We may have to bribe Cleo—she was baking chicken dumpling for me— Oh, say, would you like to eat here? With me? We could eat privately."

"Thanks, no. I want to get you away. I haven't held your hand even, in weeks. Woman, everybody on the campus knows you are my sweetheart but you! I've got to take you out and administer a little woo."

She laughed again. "Silly! But talk on. It's part of you, and I like it. What time did you want to start?"

"Instantly, if not sooner. Now."

"Okay, pal. But I'm getting to be a terrible gadabout. I'm supposed to be a working lady."

They drove north on Main boulevard, debating as to restaurants. They parked for a moment at Red Dog Johnson's "Gables." Red Dog—legal name, Gaylord Johnson, Ph.D.—was a Rice grad and manager of athletics, as well as "Gables" owner. But—

"Nerts. There's half a dozen mugs in there I know," Bob ruled. "I want you alone. Please, Honey. Sara Sue, I—I've just got to take you off alone somewhere and make love to you. I'm crazy for loving you. I mean it! Football and studies and money have got me down at the moment, but so help me, our time's coming! Sara Sue.

He had suddenly spoken his heart so earnestly, so sincerely, that the girl turned to him in some alarm. She saw the pleading in his eyes.

"Why, Bob!"

"I'm not joking, honey. I mean every word I say. I've never felt like this toward any other girl. I stole one kiss from you, on our first date. But I'll never steal another. I worship you too much. I want you to want me to kiss you!"

Sara Sue was almost frantic for a moment.

* * *

She had expected a somewhat pleasant evening of banter and play-fighting and general tom-foolery in conversation. For Bob had been like that. But now he was soft and terribly sincere. She inspected his face again, to be sure he wasn't acting. He wasn't, and that made her position harder. She bit her lip, trembling a little.

He would have taken her in his arms then, but for her quick response.

"Thank you, Bob. I think you are fine. Honestly I do. But—we must not talk now of such things! We mustn't! Simply must not. You have your—your schooling, your football and everything. I am smothered with business. And—and—well, Bob, I honestly don't feel in that mood right now. I think you are just impulsive. It takes a lot of time to fall in—to be deeply in love. Why, we hardly know each other! Come on, let's just go eat and be gay again, and not talk about us."

* * *

He drove on away with her, up the street, and forced himself back into the bantering tone. But each of them knew that a spiritual something hovered between them, or over them. One cannot bare his soul one moment, and close it the next. Sara Sue set out to be extra kind to him. She was thankful to have gotten out of a delicate spot as easily as she did. Never for anything in the world would she have wanted to hurt his feelings; certainly not the feelings of any man in love.

The meal they finally ate was good. There was music, too, and pleasant reminiscences about the dance and about football and such things. They lingered until 9:30 at their table, then walked out into Main street, there where the skyscrapers are.

At once the raucous voices of newsboys assailed them. Which phenomenon was common enough, but for the fact that they were calling extras. Casually, Bob bought a paper, and held it under a neon light for both of them to scan.

"BOB! Look! . . . Look!" Sara Sue grabbed his arm, leaning close the better to read, tense in every muscle now. And Bob himself was equally alarmed.

* * *

There were large photographs of Peaches Pomeroy, of Thornton Holgate, of a strange woman, a Mrs. Diehl, and her small daughter. Of two other Rice girls, and of some freshmen boys—and Galveston beach.

There were headlines—boxcar headlines—and sub-heads no less black. And two-column type away down the page. Bob and Sara Sue read every word.

"Bob," she suddenly spoke. Take me to Galveston at once!"

"Why, honey, what can you—?"

"Take me! Now! I'll pay the cost. Or I'll have to hire another car. This instant, I tell you! He's dying! It says so, there! His head struck the side of the rescue boat! Didn't you read it? Concussion! It says he's dying! A wave!"

"Yeah, but—do you know Holgate? I mean—"

"Yes! Come on!"

She grabbed his hand and raced him to their car, parked a block away. Obediently, without further question, Bob sped them away, heading for Galveston.

THEATERS

LIGHTS . . . camera . . . action . . . Charlie McCarthy is a "real" person even to the folks at the studio who are working with him on the set of "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man." . . . after a day's work, Charlie's head is removed and placed in an oiled silk bag for safe keeping . . . even though Boris Karloff beefed about horror films in which he was cast, observers say that he seems quite happy in his role in "The Son of Frankenstein."

* * *

Self-Sacrifice.

In "The Shining Hour" which opens at midnight tonight at the Ohio, Joan Crawford plays the role of a dancer who becomes the wife of a government farm board member who lives in Kansas. After her arrival at the farm residence, Miss Crawford, as Olivia, strikes up an intimate friendship with her sister-in-law, Judy, played by Margaret Sullavan. Olivia saves Judy from being burned to death to bring the movie to a satisfactory ending.

* * *

A parody on prison life, this film stars Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks, Slim Summerville, Arthur Treacher and Bill Robinson. The laugh-provoker is supposed to take place at Rockwell pen—which, believe it or not resembles some of our colleges.

Father of 2 Escapes Prison In Delinquency Case.

Pleading guilty in county juvenile court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old Senior high school girl, Karl Hoffman, 27, former Mansfielder, was given a suspended sentence of one year in the Columbus workhouse by Judge C. J. Anderson.

Hoffman, the second of a group of men named by the girl, was returned here from Canton by Police Identification Officer E. C. Fuller and Harry Copper, assistant county probation officer.

Judge Anderson paroled Hoffman to Frank Mitsch, Mansfield, and ordered him back to his work on a construction job in Canton. Hoffman, father of two children, is divorced.

Another man cited on the same charge several days ago was also given a one year suspended sentence. Both admitted meeting high school girls and taking them on rides.

If some men were paid only for what they know they would have to beg for a meal ticket.

UNABLE to overcome a huge height advantage with spirited and plucky play, Mansfield high school courtiers bowed to Hamilton by a 32 to 27 margin in their home opener last night before an estimated crowd of 1,000.

Coach Russ Murphy's blackshirted outfit lost little prestige in the defeat as it fought the taller visitors to a virtual standstill.

It was the second straight defeat for the Tygers, but they gained the respect of their followers by battling to the last second of the torrid affray.

Lose Shelley, Lyons.

Murphy's men showed their mettle all the way as they attempted to stave off a late Hamilton rally, but they succumbed to the inevitable after the loss of Dave Shelley and Jack Lyons via the personal foul route early in the third period.

The dismissal of these two mainstays in the tight ball game was probably as much of a factor in deciding the ball game as the height edge given the invaders by Chet Lairson, who towered five inches above the six feet level.

Their inexperienced successors held up well under fire, but not well enough to enable the Tygers to retain the lead it held virtually all the way.

Tommy Scitt's basket early in the third period was the only field goal scored by the Tygers in the second half.

After the first few minutes, Mansfield held the lead until late in the third period. The Tygers knotted the count once in the fourth quarter, but successive baskets by Sarringhaus, McMullen and Dreher cinched the verdict for the Hamiltons.

The electric timing device went haywire in the first period and the two teams battled virtually 16 minutes, or two quarters, before it was discovered. This lengthy period undoubtedly proved to the advantage of the sturdied visitors before the game expired, but it enabled the Tygers to obtain a 15 to 8 lead.

Three buckets by Scott, who led the Tyger scoring with 12 points, helped Mansfield to its good-sized lead in the opening frame.

The Tygers ran their lead to 10 points early in the second quarter, but a rally by the invaders in the fading mintues reduced the margin to four.

Mansfield held on to this slim lead until the final minute of the third quarter when Messer added a free throw and a basket to put Hamilton ahead, 26 to 25.

Gene Rudolph's conversion from the charity line tied the score, 26-all in the fourth period, but Hamilton struck hurriedly from the floor with three buckets to sew up the decision.

Although the giant Lairson scored only three baskets, he controlled play around the basket because of his great height. His presence made it difficult for the Tygers to retrieve the rebounds as frequently as desired.

The long first period tired the Tygers as their scoring in the second half shows, but they were beaten by a good ball team, it cannot be denied. However, the decision might have been reversed had Shelley and Lyons remained in the ball game.

Shelley and Lyons turned in their best performances of the season as did Scott, who continually broke up Hamilton offensive setups by interception of passes near the middle stripe.

Lairson led the rugged visitors with 10 points, with Dreher contributing eight.

Fails at Foul Line.

Mansfield scored as often from the field as Hamilton, 10 times, but was inaccurate at the black stripe. The Tygers converted only seven out of 15 free throws, while Hamilton made 12 out of 17, or, in other words, enough to win the ball game.

Hamilton, which is on a two-day tour, plays the state champion Newark club tonight.

SIGN FOR TITLE BOUT

NEW YORK—(U P)—The heavyweight championship fight between Champion Joe Louis and John Henry Lewis now is scheduled for Jan. 25. They signed contracts yesterday for the 15-round battle at Madison Square Garden.

Faced Tygers

Much of what Michigan does on the Big Ten court this season depends on James Rae, who played against Mansfield a couple of years ago as a member of the Toledo DeVilbiss quintet. Rae is one of the Wolverines' heavy scorers.

Shiloh Cagers Add Thriller

Annex 23 to 20 Decision From New Haven.

NEW HAVEN—The Shiloh high basketeers chalked up another Twin-Valley league victory here last night when they eked out a thrilling 23 to 20 decision over New Haven.

Shiloh had to come in with a second half rally to gain its triumph, but found the New Haven outfit a tough customer before it was over.

Bob Moser supplied the spark that provided the winning margin when he slipped in 10 points to hold the individual scoring mark for the tussle.

Shiloh got off to a 7 to 5 lead in the opening frame, but trailed, 12 to 10 at the intermission. But after the rest period the Drummer Boys started hitting from all angles, and went into the final chapter sporting a 17 to 16 advantage.

Kipp of New Haven followed Moser in the scoring column with nine points.

Shiloh reserves topped the New Haven youngsters, 19 to 13, in the prelim.

PLYMOUTH TRIUMPH

Ring To Pulpit

Forsaking the fight ring in which he has won 40 professional boxing matches out of 50, Johnny Catalino, 30, of Chicago, now is a student at the Moody Bible Institute. He will do his fighting from the pulpit from now on.

Bouts Attract Record Crowd

Stratton, Wahlberg Win on Armory Mat.

Walter Stratton, Whitey Wahlberg and Ike Connors copped the victories in the wrestling matches staged by the Quality Athletic club before the largest crowd of the season at the Armory last night.

In the headline match, Wahlberg threw Soldier Thomas of Vancouver, Wash., a substitute, in straight falls. Thomas was substituted for Silent Rattan, who was unable to appear because of an arm infection.

Wahlberg of Duluth took the first flop in 16 minutes with a spectacular rolling short arm scissors and finished the clean match with a short arm lock in four minuttes.

Stratton's match with Jack Lipscomb of Indianapolis was a rough-and-tumble affair in which Referee Clarence Miller and the latter clashed frequently. The Leetonia veteran also won in straight falls.

A head spin and body pin gave Stratton the first fall in approximately 16 minutes. The "thunderbolt," Stratton's specialty, ended the brawl in eight mintues.

In the opening match, Connors, a Newark product, reversed an airplane slam to throw Bill Christy of Los Angeles in nine minutes.

Rams Obtain Dutch Clark

Signed When Battles' Demands Prove Too High.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Rams today had their third coach in two years.

The new mentor, successor to Art Lewis and Hugo Bezdek, is Earl (Dutch) Clark, for the last two seasons with the Detroit Lions as player-coach. He was hired by the Ram management for two years, although no formal contract was signed.

Clark was hired when demands of the Washington Redskins for the services of Cliff Battles proved too high for Cleveland.

The Rams started their national league career a year ago last September under grey-thatched Hugo Bezdek, and in 1937 won just one game. This year they lost their opening games and failed to hit their stride until Lewis, who had been assistant coach and tackle, became mentor. They won three straight then, but slumped badly toward the end of the season, winning but one more game. Lewis will remain assistant coach.

Butler Hands Bellville Loss

Lexington Edges Ontario, Madison Stops Tyger Reserves In Other Court Battles.

WITH Capt. Wendall Ward and Kenny Miller leading the way, the undefeated Bulldogs of Butler high smothered an erstwhile unbeaten Bellville high quintet by a 44 to 21 count on the Bellville hardwood last night for their third consecutive Richland county league win.

The victory left Butler and Madison tied for the league lead. But Madison, idle in county league competition last night, has chalked up one less triumph than the Bulldogs.

Coach Bob Burgett's combine finally jumped into full speed last night, grabbing the lead in the opening stanza and was never headed.

Bellville, who established itself as a title contender by turning back Lucas last week, found it almost impossible to stop the fast-stepping Bulldogs.

Ward, who leads the individual scoring in the league, tallied 17 points to bring his season's total to 54.

Butler led the Bluejays, 8 to 5, in the opening frame, 16 to 10, at halftime, and, 25 to 18, going into the final period. And then the Bulldogs broke loose with a scoring spurt to outscore Bellville, 17 to 3, to come through on top.

Miller followed Ward in the scoring with 16 points, while J. Wade led the losers with six. All but two of 10 men employed by Burgett scored at least one point.

Butler also copped the preliminary affair, toppling the Bellville seconds, 27 to 24.

Rule's Successor Stars for Lexington.

DICK ROBERTS is doing a pretty fair job down Lexington way in filling the shoes of the spectacular Richard Rule at the pivot post for Coach Johnny Reese's Minutemen.

Last night, with the score knotted at 23-all, Roberts dumped in a foul shot in a three-minute "suicide" overtime period to give his team a hard-fought, 24 to 23 triumph over Ontario in a Richland county league contest.

Yes, and it was Roberts, who last week tallied 15 points against Union to help his club register its initial county league tussle.

Lexington and Coach Orville Kibler's lads battled through four chapters with neither club holding more than a point lead at the end of the periods.

Once in the third stanza, Lexington built up a 10 point lead, but Kibler's men soon whittled it down.

Reese's small, but scrappy squad and the lanky Ontario combine came in the opening quarter with the score tied at 4-all, but Lexington pushed ahead and at halftime with a 9-8 advantage.

Ontario outscored the Minutemen in the closing seconds of the third to knot the score at 18-all going into the last frame. And then both clubs collected five points to send the game into the overtime period.

Hudson of Ontario set the individual pace with eight points, while Shaffer and France of Lexington contributed seven and six, respectively.

In the preliminary game the Ontario seconds edged the Lexington reserves, 19 to 15.

Steel Issues Among Gainers; Market Analysts Study Business Trends.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks pointed moderately higher in today's early market dealings.

At a quiet opening fractional gainers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of N. J., and Consolidated Edison. Lowe's, weak yesterday, lost another point.

Among items studied by market anaylsts were:

A sharp pickup in demand for print cloths enlivened New York's Worth street dealings this week, with sales for the period placed at 44,000,000 yards, or more than double the weekly output of mills.

The Tanners' Council of America estimated November shoe production at 27,500,000 pairs, 29.2 per cent above the aggregate in the 1937 month. The council explained that increased output was merely keeping pace with expanding retil activities.

The Federal Reserve board survey for the next week ended Dec. 10, disclosed deartment store sales dropped 2 per cent from the corresponding week a year ago.

Friday said that his investigation disclosed that Jewell had sideswiped a machine driven by Edward Casad, 129 West Fourth street, only a short time before the accident on Orange street in front of the city relief headquarters.

Mrs. Warne was born in Richland county, June 10, 1869, and spent her entire life in this vicinity. She was a member of the United Brethren church.

Surviving are a son, Carl; her mother, Mrs. Ellen Warren of Mansfield; five brothers, Albert J., Harry, Edward and Fred Warren of Mansfield and Clarence of Dayton; a sister, Mrs. Fanny Hower of Mansfield, and four grandchildren.

NEW WARNING

Bates Reports Bogus $10 Bill Latest Counterfeit Found.

The appearance of a counterfeit $10 bill in Mansfield yesterday caused Police Chief Meade K. Bates today to sound a new warning to Richland county businessmen to be on guard against spurious notes.

The latest bogus bill, a $10 Federal Reserve note, was taken in yesterday by Steve Jordon, proprietor of Jordon's grocery, 150 North Main street. Four other fake bills have been passed in Mansfield in the past four days, all $5 notes.

Richard Lane, employe at the Axtell Dairy, Distl avenue, reported to police yesterday that he had taken in a counterfeit $5 bill from one of his route customers. Police traced the bill to a downtown store where the proprietor said it apparently had been accepted by one of his employes.

Bates said the $5 and the $10 bills were both "fairly good" imitations, but that the ink of the reverse side was light.

FREE 10 YEARS

O. S. R. Fugitive Caught After Decade of Liberty.

An Ohio State reformatory inmate who escaped from an honor camp 10 years ago was back behind the gray walls of the institution today. He was returned from Lima today by reformatory guards.

He is Harry Whilted, 39, who walked away from an institution honor camp, then located at Dayton, on Nov. 9, 1928, after serving 15 months on a one to seven year sentence for larceny. Reformatory records show that Whilted was received at the institution on Aug. 17, 1927 from Lucas county.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said that Whilted had been picked up by Lima authorities on a vagrancy charge and that fingerprint records had revealed that he was wanted here.

TUNIS TOUGH, FRENCH LEARN

Test Fortifications In Desert Territory, Decide Italy Could Be Repulsed.

not line, built to defend against an Italian attack, is a wide belt of fortifications extending southward from the sea to the mountains. It is expected to withstand any attack from Italian Libya to the east.

The oases are the corpuscles of Tunisia's economic and military district. They are rich districts many miles in area. They are surrounded by individual defense rings, which makes it possible for each sector to defend itself separately, though still depending on the maginot line to hold back any enemy drive from south to north.

For three days I have witnessed in this oasis of 200,000 palm trees, like a toy paradise, war precautions similar to those which I watched for weeks in Czechoslovakia before the dismemberment agreement at Munich.

Arriving at the town at night, I found street lamps dimmed with blue paint. Prohibitionist Arabs were drinking perfumed coffee and soft drinks behind curtained windows through which showed no glimmer of illumination.

Next morning I found that the roof of my hotel had been converted into an observation tower in which officers, equipped with field glasses and telescopes, were watching the sea and the horizon for an imaginary enemy.

Six military airplanes took off from a nearby field and maneuvered overhead, pretending both to bomb and machine gun underground shelters in which civilians and soldiers would take shelter in a war. The shelters can withstand a direct hit by a 500 pound bomb.

I noticed that even during the final review which ended the maneuvers Senegalese were digging more trenches around houses on the outskirts on the oasis. Along the nearby bathing beach I found machine gun nests dug in the sands and one concrete dugout from which troops could mow down attackers who landed from the Mediterranean in small boats.

PUPILS ON HOLIDAY, RAZING OF JUNIOR HIGH TO BEGIN MONDAY

Pupils attended their last classes in the 47-year-old John Simpson junior high school yesterday, and workmen will begin razing the huge brick structure Monday morning to make way for a new building.

Given three days more vacation than other pupils in the city, the 1,300 John Simpson students will attend classes in widely scattered points in the city after the Christmas holidays.

About half of them will attend classes on a half-day schedule in the newest section of the John Simpson building, others will go to Hedges school, and Supt. W. L. Miller .. attempting to rent two vacant buildings south of the John Simpson school for the remaining pupils.

The new shop addition at Senior high school will not be available in time for use as substitute class rooms, Miller said, because PWA officials will not permit use of the building until it is completed.

While workmen for the S. H. Tuber company, Lorain, demolish the John Simpson building, board of education members will officiate at 2 p. m. Tuesday at ceremonies marking the turning of the first shovel of earth for the new Johnny Appleseed building at Cline avenue and Wood street.

It will cost $385,482 to erect the Johnny Appleseed school and $2,738 to raze the John Simpson building. The gymnasium and eight fireproof class rooms in the newest section of the Simpson building will be retained as part of the new structure.

PAVING UP TO NEW OFFICIALS

Highway Director Tells Mayor To Submit W. Fourth Plan To His Successor.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter, who conferred with state Highway Director I. R. Ault in Columbus, yesterday, on a request for state aid for resurfacing West Fourth street, was informed that the project would be up to the new Republican administration which takes office next month.

Hunter said Ault, who retires from office early next month, said there wasn't "much the state could do about the project at this time."

The mayor said that plans and estimates for the improvements were not presented but that the director promised to make a record of the request so the incoming highway head would be informed on the plans.

He also suggested that Hunter make the request in writing and mail it to Columbus so the copy would be on file and would serve as an introduction when plans are submitted after the first of the year.

Hunter was accompanied on the trip by Boyd Wierman, county resident engineer for the state highway department, Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist and C. N. Shultz, member of council's finance committee. The group was met in Columbus by F. R. Hopley of Bucyrus, state counsel for the Lincoln Highway association.

Rumor That Davey Will Call Special Session Revived

WANTS SENATE TO CONFIRM 2 APPOINTMENTS

Critics Say School Crises Would Be Used as Disguise For Calling Lawmakers.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Rumors were revived today that Governor Davey is again considering a special session of the "lame-duck" legislature to obtain senate confirmation of at least two appointments before he leaves office.

The latest speculation was that the governor might recall the general assembly sometime between Christmas and New Year's day. Earlier this week it was intimated that efforts would be made to get only senators back on December 31 to confirm appointments. A last day session could be held in confirmity with the governor's order of July 24, 1937, proroguing a special session to Dec. 31.

'School Aid' Call.

The governor presumably would base his call on the need for dealing with school finances. His critics, holding that little could be done for the schools in so short a time, contended the real reason was to win confirmation of key appointments that have been blocked by the "hatchet men" faction of the senate.

The governor was reported eager to have Charles Leasure, Zanesville, confirmed in his re-appointment to the state unemployment insurance commission which carries a $6,000 salary and to name a successor to Thomas M. Gregory, Cincinnati, on the state industriol commission. Gregary's term has expired.

The senate twice has blocked attempts to name his successor, having withheld confirmation of J. Freer Bittinger, Ashland, and Ferd Pickens, Circleville.

Sen. Abe Laird, of Tuscarawas county, a strong administration supporter, has been mentioned for the industrial commission, and also State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley, who was defeated for re-election. Knisley said, however, the governor had given him no assurance of the appointment.

Dodd Faces Court Today On Hit-Run Driving Charge

ASHLAND Va. —(U.P.)— William E. Dodd, former U. S. ambassador to Germany, today faced a preliminary hearing on charges of hit-run driving and critically injuring a four-year-old colored girl.

Trial Justice Robert T. Winston indicated he might either postpone the case or send it to the grand jury. If Dodd faces trial, it was believed, it would not be until late in January.

Dodd was driving toward southeast Virginia for a speaking engagament on the night of Dec. 8 when his car struck the child on a highway near Hanover Courthouse.

"The reason I did not stop to talk things over was that I thought the child had escaped," the former ambassador wrote to the mother of the girl after he had been arrested and released on $2,000 bond.

Witnesses who noted the license number of Dodd's car, reported it to police and he was arrested at his home at Round Hill, Va

The girl, Gloria Grimes, has been in a Richmond hospital since the accident. Her condition remained critical today.

Dodd declared in a letter offering $25 to the child's mother for "expenses" that the girl darted in front of his car.

'Love Note' Causes Stir at Gimp's Trial

Up and Down THE STREET

Police Chief Meade K. Bates who has been conducting a one-man campaign to raise $700 for the purchase of two-way radio equipment for his department appeared a little dubious about the outcome today. The fund has totaled $625 for the past week and the chief is considering writing a letter to Santa Claus for $75 so he can get the equipment.

Comedian Red Skelton of stage and film fame, whom Mansfield claims as a native son, will make one of his rare radio appearance at 7 p. m. today as a guest artist on a WLW program. Unable to fill a regular radio spot because of a heavy stage schedule, Skelton has been in demand as a guest artist. Tonight will be one of the few times that he has had the opportunity of fulfilling a radio bid.

The Christmas spirit invaded the courthouse yesterday when county commissioners and office employes joined in donating and erecting a large Christmas tree, in the main floor lobby. Commissioners personally bought the tree, and ornaments were purchased with contributions from office workers. Girls from the auditor's office, with some help from Deputy Treasurer Charles Payne, set the tree up in the center of the lobby and decorated it. Older county employes said it was the first time in their memories that the courthouse has had a Christmas tree.

A lot of big Christmas cards will probably appear in Mansfield this year, but the chances are that none will be any bigger than one on display in the Citizen's National bank. Postal officials can be glad it isn't intended for mailing, although it has all the characteristics of a Yule card, plus a few that most cards don't have. It's blue, six feet long and eight feet wide. But it also has a third dimension, being four feet deep. The two shepherds of the Biblical story of the first Christmas are shown, watching the star that was to lead them to Bethlehem. The striking scene was made by Frank Mengert, clerk at the bank.

STRICKEN AT 78

John Miller Was Resident of Mansfield 35 Years.

John Miller, 78, a resident of Mansfield 35 years, died at his home, 298 Fourth avenue, today after a lingering illness. He was a native of Hungary.

Two brothers, Gottfried Miller and John Kifus of Jugoslavia, and a sister, Mrs. Eva Coch of Rumania, also survive.

DESCRIBES PAL'S DEATH LEAP FROM BLAZING COACH OF FLYER

(By International News Service)

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. — The dramatic tale of how one man clung to the outside of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad flyer and watched his companion hurtle to his death when they became trapped by flames in a baggage car, was slowly unfolded by the survivor today.

Express Messenger E. D. Owens, 45, of New York City, unable to retain his grip on the side of an old-type wooden car, where he and his assistant, Martin Egan, of Connellsville, crawled after fire spread from an exploded oil lamp, fell to his death as the train speeded between Connellsville and Dawson, the engineer unaware of the tragedy occurring behind him.

Egan, who boarded the train at McKeesport, just outside of Pittsburgh, hung grimly to the rungs of the ladder, while hungry flames licked at his body, barely escaping with his life at the end of an 11-minute, 50-mile-an-hour rush through the night.

"Near Dawson," related Egan, who stumbled by himself to the State hospital at Connellsville after other trainmen finally saw the flames and pulled the emergency cord, "the lamp in a wall bracket exploded and right away we had the fire. We tried to put it out, but it was no use. We pulled the emergency cord, but it didn't work.

"So Owens and I opened the door and got on the ladder, my hands were burning, but I kept my grip.

"I guess we went about six miles before Owens couldn't stand it anymore. Near Broad Ford I saw him let go and he fell away."

Hospital authorities said they thought Egan would recover.

EXTEND HOURS

Stores Remain Open Evenings Next Week, Says Lodde.

Mansfielders who have put off their Christmas shopping until the last minute will have the evening hours from tonight through next Saturday to make their purchases, V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association, announced today.

"Following the practice of previous years," Lodde said, "most Mansfield retail establishments will remain open until 9 p. m. starting today and continuing through Dec. 24."

Lodde said the action had been recommended by the trustees of the association who at the same time urged shoppers to take advantage of the less crowded conditions in the mornings to complete their holiday buying.

"The extra shopping hours will enable late buyers to make Christmas purchases and will make shopping more convenient for persons employed during the day," he added.

LETTER BARING HOTEL MEETING DRAWS DENIAL

Snyder Disclaims Knowledge Of Message Containing Charges by N. Y. Girl.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES—Testimony in the trial of Martin (The Gimp) Snyder on attempted murder charges, near its end today, took a final, sordid turn which brought a flurry of denials.

Snyder, claiming he still carries the torch for Ruth Etting although the flaxen-haired singer has divorced him, denied he knew anything about a letter written to him at his Hollywood hotel by a New York girl also registered there.

The letter, signed "Esther," upbraided Snyder for neglecting her after "the other night when I did decide to give myself to you."

"If I happened to be a hussy I, of course, would and could realize that after all you were just a man for the evening," it continued.

Arrested in Shooting.

It asked Snyder to "come by tonight," but that night he was arrested on a charge of shooting Myrl Alderman, former accompanist of Miss Etting.

Dr. S. M. Alder testified he treated Snyder in 1936 for an intimate ailment, but said under cross examination it was the result of an infection at the time Snyder was 18.

Jimmy Fidler, who broadcasts film news and gossip, and John Swallow, radio program director, denied that Alderman, as Snyder had intimated from the witness stand, procured women for them.

"I am," said Fidler, "happily married."

Alderman eloped with Miss Etting to Las Vegas, Nev., last Wednesday.

The hearing was recessed at noon yesterday until Monday with indications that arguments would begin then, after brief testimony regarding photographic exhibits.

Snyder is charged with kidnaping and attempting to murder Alderman, Miss Etting and his daughter, Edith, last Oct. 15.

GET TWO-WEEK YULE PAROLES

600 Alabama Convicts Placed On Honor For Leaves.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(AP)— The metallic rasp of keys turned in steel-grated doors was music today to the ears of more than 600 Alamaba convicts leaving prisons on Christmas paroles of two weeks.

For the 11th year, Alabama granted "good behavior" Christmas paroles for convicts, mostly long termers whose wardens deemed them worthy of consideration and trust.

Not That It Matters

Typewriter Soliloquy On What Can Happen Man, Brought on by Yule Work

—By JANE WILLIAMS

REGARDLESS of whether it was Bunyan's Pilgrim or Roger Williams who first said "There, but for the grace of God, go I" when he saw a man on the way to the gallows, it's tops in quotable philosophy and deservedly has been handed down for several hundred years.

Many a smart man, witnessing another's misfortune, must have said the same thing to himself, knowing full well that circumstances, and a large element of that thing we call "luck" governs one's destiny.

All of which typewriter soliloquy is brought on by the annual Christmas job of filling baskets for the needy and unfortunate families of Mansfield, and being brought face to face with the fact that people I've known in their prosperous years are now destitute.

* * *

WHAT would happen to YOU if you lost your job and simply couldn't get another and you were out of work for a year or so? Did you ever think about it in something more than a surface manner?

And I'm not just thinking of the men with families who struggle along from one pay-day to another, always a little behind with their doctor bills and grocery bills. I'm thinking of the prosperous families whose monthly income, depending upon a position or business, is anywhere between $400 and $4,000 a month. The family probably lives well and saves less than it should.

If that family should lose its source of income for a couple of years and have sickness and hospital bills—what would happen to it?

If you could look in the files of the Three Muster-Cheers right now, you'd find the answer to a couple of such problems. They are on the list of those who will receive Christmas baskets this year.

And when I look at those names, I'm pretty humble, a little scared and passionately grateful when I say: "There, but for the grace of God and a lot of good luck, am I."

* * *

THERE have been times in more arrogant years when I might have said: "You are master of your own destiny, and if I couldn't get a job, I'd find another legitimate way to make money, using initiative, intelligence and ambition."

But in more mature years I've learned that a man may have all three of these qualities and still be beaten down by an unkind fate and a chaotic economic world.

* * *

AND so, if you are one of the fortunates this year, if you've a job and a regular and adequate income to live comfortably well, it won't hurt you a bit to know that in Mansfield there are men who were just as comfortable and secure as yourself only a few years ago and who are on the Christmas basket list; and to say to yourself:

"But for the grace of God I might have been on that list myself."

* * *

THIS craze among adults for Ferdinand, the bull that had a yen for sweet-smelling flowers, may seem a little silly, but it's also a healthy sign that whimsy is not dead in this materialistic world. In Cleveland last week a Euclid avenue store had a stuffed and mechanical Ferdinand in the display window which attracted such crowds that the sidewalk was hopelessly jammed all day and police finally asked the company to remove the non-combative Ferdinand and his bouquet to an inside place of honor.

* * *

JGILBERT BAIRD, who returned recently from Hollywood, says that the Selznick studio is being turned inside out in preparation for the beginning of work on "Gone With The Wind," scheduled for Jan. 6.

The film will be made in Technicolor, which will be expensive, but the company probably hopes to save it by using color. The fact is that Selznick has delayed production so long and there have been so many false alarms over casting the characters that the completed picture certainly won't be the history-making event that it would have been, had it been filmed immediately after the book was published.

* * *

AN AMAZING and unforeseen reaction to the picture "Boys Town" is that Father Flanagan's splendid efforts to rescue and rehabilitate homeless and delinquent boys at his Boys Town, Neb actually have been jeopardized.

The town located on 440 acres of land and made up of modern fire-proof homes, school buildings and work shops, is supported entirely by popular subscriptions but in the picture "Boys Town," the story ended happily with plenty of money and the project on easy street. Almost immediately after the film was released, contributions began to drop off—because the American public takes its movies pretty seriously and most people thought the need for contributions was ended.

Father Flanagan, whose tolerance, understanding and wise council has guided 4,600 boys of all races and creeds during the 21 years the Town has been in existence, has written to several Mansfielders explaining his problem.

And just in case any individual or any club wants to contribute to Boys Town, it is only necessary to address Father Flanagan at Boys Town, Neb.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Advertising Opinions of Thurman Arnold Contain Germ of Press Regulation

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general and, next to J. Edgar Hoover, the best self-advertiser in the department of justice, recently propounded an idea which may be admirable as fostering humility, but calls for a challenge, nevertheless.

Mr. Arnold says advertising promotes monopoly when one company spends more money than a rival dealing in the same product or service. If the second company decides to advertise line for line against the first, that, he says, runs up the cost of distribution. Otherwise, the first one tends to monopolize the business.

Well, modesty is a very nice trait, but I disbelieve that Mr. Arnold ever made a practice of telling people, "Don't hire me, as I am an awful slob and a sure thing to ball up any job entrusted to me."

On the contrary, from the professional technique in Mr. Arnold's own publicity, I take it that he is a first-class circus man himself or commands the services of one or more ballyhoo experts, paid out of the people's taxes, to 23-sheet him before the public and in the normal course of things will acquire a reputation with a high cash value.

* * *

We never see Mr. Arnold designated as No. 6 or his outgivings attributed merely to the department of justice, nor does his contention harmonize with the engagement of "a thousand paid publicity agents daily and hourly to praise and color and sell the official acts" of the administration of which he is a part. This quote, incidentally, is from a pious little address about normality in public office, delivered several months ago by Herbert Hoover, who further accused this publicity staff of poluting thought "with the drugs of propaganda."

* * *

Yet the proposition of Mr. Arnold contains the germ of press regulation by some lawyer-politician or any embittered failure at the newspaper business who may be taken on in Washington as moderator of advertising with power to avenge actual wrongs suffered at the hands of editors and publishers and heal the sting of his own incompetence.

* * *

Who would say how much advertising was enough in a given case and what better way could a government punish, even suppress, a hostile press than by limiting the best advertisers to the lineage bought by the least of their competitors?

If one cigaret company buys a half page and a competitor buys none, both cigarets being equal and preference a matter of mere taste, would the half-page company be altogether forbidden to advertise? And, assuming that the non-advertising firm were financially able to advertise but simply preferred not to for reasons of its own, would the advertising client be required to drop out of print, its business policy subject to veto by a competitor?

COUNTY IN LINE

Meets State Relief Requirements, Will Get Funds.

Richland county is one of 28 counties in Ohio which have complied with requirements of the state relief office and will receive their relief funds for December, Frank G. Kleinhenz, acting state relief director, announced today.

Funds will be withheld from other counties because their relief administration costs are above 15 per cent, or they have failed to show how they will attempt to reduce the cost below the 15 per cent limit, Kleinhenz said.

In some cases, he added, allocations will be delayed because counties did not send in their 1939 budgets, as requested, or failed to file their November relief reports with the state office.

Richland county receives an average of $7,500 per month from the state to apply on its relief bills.

Drive carefully tomorrow—remember that accidents do not always happen to someone else.

Habits are easily acquired, and there are some people who feel that Sunday isn't complete unless they hear Charlie McCarthy.

Iceland brags of having no soldiers, warships or fighting planes. It must be very dull there, with nothing but peace and prosperity.

Busy, Tiring Days for Clerks.

FROM now on through next week will be a busy and tiring period for salespeople in retail stores. This is the rush season of the year in retail merchandising, with stores open evenings as well as the usual daytime hours.

While there has been gradual acceptance of the "shop early" suggestion through the past several years, it cannot be escaped that much actual buying of Christmas gifts is delayed until the final few days, winding up in a last-minute flurry that crowds stores to capacity.

In Mansfield, as elsewhere, there are some people who can arrange their regular work, or household duties, so as to shop in the morning just as conveniently as in the afternoon or evening. It will be thoughtful of them, and a considerable help to salespeople, if they will do this.

And there is also a need, in the crush of holiday shopping, for good nature, courtesy and consideration of others, each taking his or her "turn" to be waited on, rather than thoughtlessly or impudently crowding in ahead of someone who has been waiting longer.

Now that it is too late to "shop early," the best that can be done is to shop and BUY as early as possible next week—and BUY IN MANSFIELD STORES.

Good Selections for Park Board.

MORE definite approach to a carefully prepared and financially practical program for improvement and maintenance of Mansfield's public parks may be expected under supervision of the interested and capable men who have been appointed to the board of park commissioners by Mayor Hunter.

The fact that these three appointees—former Mayor Henry G. Brunner, Robert S. Gibson and Roy W. Vaughn—were among those recommended by various organizations having special interest in park development, is sufficient assurance that their appointment will be accorded very general public approval and that there is a feeling of confidence they will do their work well.

At last month's election, by a large majority, Mansfield voters approved the idea of removing management of public parks from partisan politics by establishing a non-partisan park commission, members of which are to serve without pay.

Mansfield has been fortunate in the early recognition by some of its citizens that space would be needed for public parks. This accounts for the present availability of park tracts along the entire west side of the city, also for Central park, Johns park, Prospect park, and what was intended to be Maple Lake park.

Liberty park, serving the northeast section of the city in an admirable way, is evidence of continued interest in providing additional beauty spots and recreational facilities convenient to residents of all parts of the city.

Possibilities for a considerably more elaborate parkway system are being visioned by some who have given thought to the subject, but the problem of the moment appears to be earliest possible rehabilitation of some of the present parks, which have been too long neglected and sadly in need of attention.

It appears that an allocation of federal funds can shortly be made available for PWA work, to aid in meeting costs of improvements in the parks, if prompt action is taken along this line, which should open the way for early spring activity under direction of the new park board.

Weighed and Found Wanting.

THRICE honored by election as mayor of Lorain and later chosen to the position of county sheriff, William F. Grall, a college graduate, was yesterday taken to the Ohio penitentiary to serve a term of from one to ten years on conviction of having accepted bribes from the operator of a house of prostitution.

More than ordinary stigma attaches to such an offense when it is committed by a person in whom a large number of people have expressed confidence by elevating him to a position of responsibility and trust.

Here was a man whose place in his community was such as to lead people to believe that he was fitted for the office of mayor. He was elected to that office three times. Afterward he was elected sheriff, a law enforcement position in which integrity and high character are essential qualifications.

Following a bribery investigation some months ago, Grall was granted immunity from prosecution on some such charges by testifying before a grand jury against others involved in the unsavory mess.

The charge of accepting bribes from a brothel keeper was not included among those in which he had been accorded immunity from prosecution.

He was indicted, tried this week, convicted, sentenced, and sent to the penitentiary.

In such a case as this it appears that the sentence imposed can very properly be exemplary as well as punitive. Men who cannot resist the temptations common to some public offices should under no circumstances accept such offices, nor should the public attitude be tolerant toward official malfeasance.

While there's already a big demand for electric shavers, some men are still using their grandfather's hollow-ground razors—evidencing the need for variety in supplying demand.

A psychiatrist predicts that by 1960 half the population of the world will be in insane asylums—which raises the question, "Which half?"

Professional man: One who makes money by serving his neighbors and loses it by investing in the schemes of strangers.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Anthony Eden's visit in the United States is likely to have more effect in England than here.

In his first speech, the one before the Manufacturers association, he insisted his visit was not connected in any way with public affairs, but diplomats and politicians do not expect to be taken seriously when they make such statements.

His visit is interpreted in certain circles here as intended to bolster his position in England as the leader of the "younger" element who are plugging for international organization to keep the peace. When the League of Nations folded they began looking for co-operation of the United States to restore Britain to the balance of power in Europe she once had.

The story told here is that one of the internal conflicts which led up to the resignation of Eden last February as foreign minister in Chamberlain's cabinet was a conflict over what dependence could be placed upon the United States if needed in a pinch.

* * *

Chamberlain Had Doubts.

CHAMBERLAIN, who remembered more clearly how this country reacted against the league, and again remembered the negative reaction to the president's "quarantine" speech, doubted whether the United States ever could be committed in advance to aid England. Eden evidently believed such commitments could be had, perhaps not in the form of a treaty approved by the senate, but in the form of understandings between officials of the two countries. They broke when Chamberlain insisted on pursuing a policy of pacification independently both of the league and the United States.

Rebuffs came to England time after time under the Chamberlain policy, first from Mussolini and then from Hitler. It was Eden's view, as represented here, that such rebuffs would have been avoided and England's position made secure if she never had faltered in her earlier purpose of building up international organization through the league and through understandings with the U. S.

Eden went out of the ministry immensely popular, and with a considerable following not only of the younger element but also of many old heads in the conservative party. One of these reputedly is former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, who continues to be a powerful party figure behind the scenes.

* * *

One Man Good-Will Tour.

EDEN'S trip to the United States from a British point of view then takes on the semblance of a one-man good-will junket whose most immediate purpose is to strengthen Eden and his following when the expected election rolls around, possibly within a year. If Eden should take advantage of his own trip to the United States, and the further good will built up by the visit of the king and queen here next summer, to build up a semblance of an inside "understanding" between the U. S and England, he would have a tremendous bargaining power with the electorate. In spite of much public acclaim, there is stout British opposition to the Chamberlain policy of pacification by negotiation and willingness to take rebuffs.

So far as the United States is concerned, observers here see not the slightest possibility that any real "co-operative organization" with England may be brought about. Eden is a popular fellow and has the high aim of saving the British Empire from a fate worse than death. But there seems too much spirit of splendid isolation in this country for any political back-stopping.

Third-Term Talk Held Premature

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Had President Roosevelt known in advance that Senator Joseph F. Guffey was about to inflate a third term boom for him, it is no secret in Washington that the White House tenant would have hushed the Pennsylvanian for all he was worth. It is perfectly obvious that presidential strategy is to keep folk guessing for some time to come on the third term issue. If it becomes apparent that "F. D." is third termishly receptive a terrific row over the question is certain to start within the Democratic party, not to mention the equal certainty that the Republicans will make a lot of capital out of it. If it's definitely announced that he won't accept a third nomination under any circumstances he is bound to lose considerable influence over Democrats in the incoming congress.

True, the subject already had been more or less discussed before the Quaker statesmen's ebullition concerning it, but it was rather hazy until the Pennsylvanian exploded. He brought it so prominently into the headlines that it will be difficult for the executive mansion to ignore it much longer.

He Can't Ask.

The best political betting is that his excellency would like to be drafted, but he can't say so; else it would be a bid, not mere acquiescence in conscription. On the opposite hand, should he serve notice that he won't even be conscripted he forecloses himself against conscription. For that matter, possibly he could yield reluctantly at the last moment. All the same, it would be risky for him to eliminate himself too early. He might be taken at his word by the 1940 convention.

In short, Guffey was indiscreet, premature. It's surprising in the case of so supposedly crafty a politician. New Dealers concede that he doubtless meant well. Yet they'd like to spank him.

The senator's outburst, indeed, has created as mean a split in the Democratic ranks as the G. O. P.'s national committee created in its own alignment by putting ex-Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware on its own managerial board—its executive sub-committee.

Personally I don't think Hastings is as blindly reactionary as is represented, but I seem to be in a minority of about one in thinking so.

Anyway, the liberal Republicans were simply horrified at Hastings' selection. And the Democrats were transported with joy at it. They calculated that it had split the G. O. P. wide open. It did look like it. But right on the heels of that development Senator Guffey sprang his third term ballyhoo, which promises to raise heck with Democratic solidarity. Conservative Democrats are outraged. New Deal Democrats admit that Guffey was frightfully injudicious. How he happened to go off at half-cock like that stumps them.

That a boom can be launched too soon is well recognized in politics.

A 1940 Democratic boom for Vice President John N. Garner already has been cut loose in Texas. That's all right enough—for Garner can't be presidentially nominated in any event. He's too old and too conservative — too conservative even for moderate conservatives. The next Democratic candidate (Roosevelt excepted) must be a compromise, and "Texas Jack" isn't a compromise.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull would be a compromise, but he's too old. He's talked about, but he hasn't a boom in his favor. He won't be nominated either.

The Clark Boom.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, however, is backed by quite a boom. The result is that he'll be shot at from all directions during the next session of congress—by Republicans of course, and by Democratic rivals. Two years are quite awhile to be shot at without having some vulnerabilities discovered.

Freedom? But Would You Pay the Price?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FREEDOM! Grand word! Glorious vision! And how we like to orate about it, we Americans . . . quoting our forefathers' thrilling risks, heroic deeds . . .

Freedom—"Our birthright" sez we.

Oh, yeah—?

I wonder!

Lovely notion—Liberty!

But how much liberty do you suppose we could individually use?

FOR HOW MUCH FREEDOM ARE WE WILLING TO PAY?

A price for Freedom — perhaps you've never thought of it that way. But you can bet your Great-grampaw's upper-plate that HE DID! And here's a Young American—only 17 as yet—who realizes it. Perhaps YOU felt like this once, remember? Then lend the more sympathetic ear to lad Charles.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"I represent the average American Youth. Like all Americans I have always taken individual Liberty for granted. It seemed to me the natural element of human life. But lately I've been wondering.

"Americans have had more freedom of thought, action and choice than any other people have ever had. Unrestricted by caste, an American may look at the world around him and take what he wants from it—if he is able. But—

"INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY MEANS INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY. WHOEVER MAKES DECISIONS IS RESPONSIBLE FOR RESULTS!

"When common men were slaves and serfs, they obeyed and they were fed. FREE MEN PAID FOR THEIR FREEDOM BY SACRIFICING THAT SERVICE AND SECURITY. Today Young America faces this question—

"IS PERSONAL FREEDOM WORTH THE EFFORT OF THE NEVER-LIFTED BURDEN AND THE RISKS OF SELF-RELIANCE? OR DO THEY WANT TO CRY QUITS AND HOLLER FOR HELP FROM THE GOVERNMENT OR SOME OTHER AGENCY!"

Charles Parysek, age 17,
Flushing, N. Y.

Is personal freedom worth the effort and the risk?

OR DO THEY WANT TO CRY QUITS . . . HOLLER FOR HELP.

Blunt questions, those! Questions that are agitating the whole world . . . that are making and unmaking governments. But suppose we put politics aside and apply those questions to YOUR OWN LIFE . . .

HOW MUCH FREEDOM COULD YOU, YOURSELF, USE? HOW MUCH LIBERTY WOULD YOU, YOURSELF, RISK?

If you're a woman, there's this business of "emancipation," "Your rights." . . . You want 'em—and how! Then why don't you have more rights, more respect, more power in your own life, more influence in others? It can be had. Other women have achieved it. You're sore about those other women. You spend lonely hours, weeping resentful tears because your husband goes off to the club, your children depart to the movies without inviting you to come along. How cruel they are. How ungrateful, after all you've done for them! You're (sniff! sniff!) the victim of a (sniff! sniff! sniff!) callous generation!

But is that the true answer? Or is your neglect due to the plain fact that YOU'VE ALLOWED YOURSELF TO BECOME A DULL, DREARY, KILL-JOY? . . . LACKING KNOWLEDGE OF OR INTEREST IN CURRENT LIFE . . . A BLIGHT ON ANY PARTY YOU ATTEND?

And the same embarrassing logic faces you as a man. You, too, wanna be riding high, wide 'n' handsome. Yet, in both office and home, yo're just an also-ran. Why? Is it because Family and Shop are in a conspiracy against you? OR IS IT BECAUSE, WHEN IT COMES RIGHT DOWN TO BRASS TACKS, YOU'RE A FADE-OUT?

Freedom? You want it? And you think you should have it. You're honest and ambitious . . . self sacrificing, hard-working, loyal, willing to take orders.

BUT HOW MANY RISKS WILL YOU RUN? HOW MUCH RESPONSIBILITY WILL YOU CARRY? HOW MANY DECISIONS DARE YOU MAKE? HOW MUCH LONELINESS CAN YOU ENDURE?

Freedom—nice word . . . lovely notion. But does it fit your collar band?

Timely Editorial

Would Mean Less Efficiency.

While some are so foolish to suggest that governmental ownership of the railroads might be a good thing, if they will study into the matter a little deeper they will realize the alarming significance of such a move. Most business and industrial activities engaged in by the government immediately result in a loss of efficiency, fail in keeping up with the times, and immediately become most uneconomic enterprises. Politics is the cause. Private industry, even though having its defects, is a thousand times better than governmentally operated industry in which the employes owe their jobs to the extent they kowtow to the political bosses.

We must have railroads, and the quicker this country comes to the rescue of our present roads the better off the nation will be.—El Reno (Okla) American.

Equal rights for all, special privileges for none.—Thomas Jefferson.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

CONGRESS meets two weeks from next Tuesday. Democrats—though they got only 49% of the November votes for house members, to 47.8% for Republicans and 3.2% for minor party candidates—still will hold over 60% of the seats, house and senate. But the Republican minority will be the largest since 1930. And the impression is growing among politicians that the president, in his opening message, will adopt an I-leave-it-to-you-attitude. Developments this week underlined these probable items on the agenda for the coming session.

Crop Control.

The federal farm law provides for (1) bonus payment to farmers who comply with government planting quotas; (2) a penalty tax on sales of specific crops above marketing quotas approved by two-thirds of the growers.

"Benefits" are being paid this year for compliance with acreage allotments for cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, rice, sugar beets, sugar cane, sorghum cane, peanuts, potatoes, flax and rye. But marketing quotas were imposed only on cotton approved by a 92 per cent vote of cotton farmers last March) and tobacco (approved by an 86 per cent vote of the growers).

Last week-end, farmers in 19 southern states voted on proposed 1939 marketing quotas for cotton, rice and flue-cured tobacco. Cotton farmers approved the new quota by 84 per cent—948,798 to 180,156. Flue-cured tobacco growers favored a 1939 quota 130,370-to-98,658, but that was about 10 per cent short of the two-thirds vote necessary to carry it. And the proposed rice quota failed even to get a majority, losing 3,874 to 3,509.

Federal agricultural experts hailed the cotton vote as proof that farmers approve the New Deal theory that agricultural prosperity can best be attained by government control of production and sales, and as ammunition to use against any attempt in the new congress to torpedo AAA.

Social Security.

The success of several old-age pension advocates at the polls in November turned the spotlight on proposals to liberalize the federal social security act. Many such proposals have been studied in the last six months by the Social Security advisory council, which includes representatives of workers, employers and the public-at-large. The council's report, now completed, is expected to recommend moderate boosts in the old-age insurance schedules and broadening of the act to include, ultimately, some 8,000,000 additional workers.

At Home

Drug Story.

A director of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., 105-year-old, $87,000,000 New York drug wholesaler, described the company's financial affairs last week as "so darned fantastic we still can't believe them." Then, as the company petitioned for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws, investigations were launched by four federal, state and local agencies.

Witnesses at one of the hearings questioned the existence of $10,000,000 worth of crude drugs and $8,000,000 in accounts receivable, listed as assets of the company's crude drug department.

F. Donald Coster, 54, president of the company, was asked to resign—refused, was indicted, arrested, released on bond, and yesterday shot himself to death.

* * *

Dope Debate.

Narcotic addicts are incurable, says William G. Walker of California's narcotics division. So, he suggested recently, why not scrap the state narcotic hospital as a useless expense and put addicts on rations under medical supervision?

That, he argued, would (1) end crimes committed by addicts to get narcotics and (2) eliminate the illegal narcotics traffic by leaving peddlers no customers.

Officials of the U. S. Public Health Service brushed his suggestion aside, as far as the federal government is concerned, by stating that they had found institutional treatment of narcotic addicts "very effective."

* * *

Going Up.

Last May, the Federal Reserve board's index of industrial production touched a recession low of about 75 per cent of the 1923-25 level. In November, the board reported this week, the index climbed above 100. If it reached 140, economists figure, unemployment would disappear.

People

Rooseveltiana.

President Roosevelt isn't much good at keeping a diary, he told newsmen recently: He started three on Jan. 1 of different years, and the longest lasted until Jan. 4. But Mr. Roosevelt's letters, speeches, state papers, etc., since 1910, when he entered public life as a New York state senator, would fill many volumes.

All, he announced last week-end, are to be placed in a new library at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home—to be "kept as a whole and intact in their original condition, available to scholars." His income from writing—minus taxes—will go to the project, he added, and the entire 100-acre estate will go ultimately to the government.

* * *

Checkered Career.

A prosecuting attorney once called Gaston B. Means a "modern Baron Munchausen"—

Early in the World war, he served as an undercover German agent in the U. S. In 1917, he was acquitted of murder. In 1921, he became an FBI agent. In 1924, he was convicted in a prohibition case and, a little later, of conspiring to bribe government officials. In 1930, he published "The Strange Death of President Harding," later repudiated by its co-author as a hoax. In 1932, he got a 15-year federal sentence for doing a Washington society woman out of $104,000 on the pretext that he could obtain the safe return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. This week, age 59, he died in a U. S. prison hospital.

* * *

UTW, CIO and AFL.

Francis J Gorman, president of CIO'S United Textile Workers, joined AFL this week and asked his union members to consider doing likewise. Thereupon, he was removed from the advisory council of CIO's Textile Workers Organizing Committee.

* * *

Guest of the Week.

England's Anthony Eden — tall, dark and handsome—thrilled government stenographers in Washington this week, talked with the president, took tea with Mrs. Roosevelt, inspected a CCC camp, visited George Washington's tomb.

"I had always wanted to see Washington," he disclosed. His talk with Mr. Roosevelt, he revealed, was "very pleasant." He found American slum clearance projects "quite interesting." And he "hadn't seen" reports from London that he might soon be welcomed back to the British cabinet.

QUOTES

WILLIAM H. KING, United States senator from Utah: "I would favor a severance of diplomatic relations with a government that is so cowardly and that has gone so wild as the Nazi regime."

EVA TANGUAY, when told she was on the verge of death: "It's all right. It has to come some time and my life has been a full one."

Abroad

The Big Four.

French Premier Daladier backed by a fresh vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies, was busy this week driving his bigger budget through parliament. Other Frenchmen worried about:

1. Talk that Hitler's next step in his march eastward would be to weld restless Ukrainian districts of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary into a huge Nazi-dominated Ukrainian state.

2. Continued Italian agitation for an adjustment of colonial authority in north Africa.

France announced she had informed both Italy and Germany she would never yield an inch of territory in response to fascist demands.

* * *

Good Neighbors.

When Mexico seized U. S. and British oil properties (valued at $400,000,000) last March, her President Cardenas said he would not sell oil to fascist nations. Later he backed down, announcing: "If the democratic nations won't buy our oil, then we must sell where we can."

Since then, Mexico has traded oil for Japanese beans, sold oil to Itlians and completed negotiations to exchange $17,000,000 worth of oil for cash and goods expected to come mostly from Germany.

Probes

Patent Problem.

Witnesses before the Temporary National Economic Committee last week described the "free exchange" of patents in the auto industry. Committee witnesses, this week, pictured a different situation in the glass industry:

Two companies, said a justice department report, hold patents that give them indirect control over 96.6 per cent of the nation's glass container production.

Government attorneys spoke of a "patent monopoly," but officers of the companies defended the situation as tending to "stabilize" the industry.

* * *

Tax Talk.

Should the government cut taxes on companies that share profits with their workers? Or on companies that spend their profits for new equipment? Or on companies suffering from hard times? A senate committee, during the last month, has heard businessmen argue those questions pro and con.

This week, for instance, the general counsel for the Association of American Railroads testified that "incentive taxation" might help loosen a $1,000,000,000-a-year backlog of rail equipment purchases that would put 500,000 men to work in steel mills, etc.

deeper, found his solution in death, authorities moved quickly against the three brothers whom the government charges played varying roles as his aides in building an empire of swindle.

"George Dietrich," identified as George Musica, was held in $100,000 bail in New Haven Conn., with conspiring to violate the securities act of 1934. He was assistant vice president and assistant treasurer of the drug firm.

"George Vernard," Canadian agent of the corporation, was held in $100,000 bail on a similar charge after police forced their way into his Brooklyn home at pistol point to arrest him. His real name, authorities said, was Arthur Musica. His trial in federal court here was fixed for Jan. 11.

"Robert Dietrich," or Robert Musica, youngest of the brothers also was held in New York under $100,000 bail. Robert, who was employed as purchasing agent in the McKesson-Robbins plant at Bridgeport, was arraigned on a simple charge of violating the SEC act.

Robert was the only Musica brother not involved in the collapse of the $1,000,000 United States Hair company in 1913, for which Coster-Musica assumed all blame. Robert was only nine years old then.

Mother Leaves Home.

Authorities said that the 76-year-old mother of Coster-Musica, known as Mrs. Mary Girard, and his sister, Marie Girard, had left their modest brick home at Westbury, N. Y., Wednesday "to enjoy a warmer climate."

Another sister, they said, was the wife of Robert Guex, a gardener on the estate of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau at Wicopee, N. Y.

Until the present far-reaching inquiries are completed, investigators said there was no way of estimating how high the losses to McKesson & Robbins stockholders would mount.

Henry D. Faxon, secretary and a director, said "the company is solvent and will go on in better shape than before." It is undergoing reorganization.

When stock exchange trading in the firm's securities was suspended Dec. 7, McKesson & Robbins Common stock was selling at $7.50 a share and its $3 preferred stock at $36.50 a share.

"Over the counter" prices yesterday were 75 cents a share bid, $1 asked, for the common stock and $7.25 a share bid, $8 asked, for preferred stock.

Halt Government 'Nonsense', Ward Tells Group Here

The United States needs businessmen who will take an interest in government, a representative group of 50 businessmen and merchants were told last night.

Frank P. Ward, industrial relations director for the Ohio Chamber of Commerce declared that "the average businessman doesn't pay any attention to his government."

"Get acquainted in your own precinct," he told the group gathered in the Chamber of Commerce assembly rooms. "Familiarize yourself with local affairs—then and only then will this law nonsense stop."

Ward appearing here to conduct a clinic on the new wages and hours law said that the businessmen of the nation were allowing a small political group to "run the government and enact new legislation to put business in a straightjacket."

"It's about time that the businessmen, instead of sticking to a straight ticket, starts playing both sides of the street, then he'll be better off."

Police today were holding two youths, the oldest of whom is 15, in connection with the theft of a carton of cigarets at the American Grocery company yesterday, while a third, picked up for shoplifting had been released to his parents.

Police said the two youths accused of petit larceny were picked up near the grocery company yesterday afternoon after Clyde Pittman, the manager reported that the pair had taken a carton of cigarets from a truck parked at the loading platform. They said they found the cigarets hidden in the garage at the home of one of the boys.

LET CONTRACTS FOR FAIRGROUND JOB AT ASHLAND

Commissioners Accept Bids Totaling $18,236 to Build Three New Structures.

ASHLAND — County commissioners awarded four contracts for the construction of three new buildings at the Ashland county fairgrounds as a PWA project Thursday. The contracts will be let for $223 above the estimates.

Contracts were awarded as follows: Junior fair building, C. F. Kopp, $2,592; grandstand, D. D. Hootman, $4,671.92 with Burger Iron company of Akron getting the award for the steel section of the construction for $4,990; horse barn, D. D. Hootman, $4,982.42. Contract costs total $18,236.34.

To make up the difference between the contracts prices and the estimate, commissioners agreed Friday to take the necessary funds from the county general fund. There were seven bids submitted. It is expected that work on the buildings will start before Jan. 1.

NO REDUCTIONS MADE

ASHLAND—No reduction was made in grocery orders given to relief clients Friday, although county commissioners requested by letter that Mrs. Edna Duncan, county relief director, reduce the relief load by one third. Mrs. Duncan said that she plans to keep the grocery orders on the basis on which they are now given because they are as small as they can be.

The relief director stated that the only major means of reducing the relief load would be to transfer cases to other agencies. On the first of the year, all veterans on relief will be turned over to the Soldiers' Relief commission and all relief clients having tuberculosis will be turned over to the county commissioners for care.

COURT ORDERS FOUR OF SIX TO TERMS IN JAIL

Huron Woman Only One to Plead Innocence; Judge Disposes of Cases Quickly.

Four of six persons brought before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court this morning received jail or penitentiary sentences when they pleaded guilty to grand jury indictments or parole violation.

Another pleaded innocent to an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses while the sixth was placed on probation for three years. Judge Huston disposed of the cases within a few minutes.

Asserting that "it's cheaper to feed you in a penal institution than on WPA," Judge Huston sentenced Charles Wareham, 27, Mansfield, to one to three years in the Mansfield reformatory for non-support. Theodore Cook, 20, a transient, received 60 days in county jail.

Cook, who said he left a CCC camp because he "didn't like it," pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

"Maybe you'll like it better in the county jail; 60 days," Judge Huston said.

Sent To Marysville.

Miss Dora Fryson, 22, colored, Mansfield, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Marysville reformatory on her plea of guilty to an indictment for slashing Betty Wise, also colored, with a butcher knife. Judge Huston warned her not to return to Mansfield when she is released.

Arraigned on an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses, Miss Caroline Borgia, 26, of Norwalk, pleaded innocent. County authorities said they would not bring her here for trial until similar charges against her are heard in Huron county. She was released under $2,500 bond.

Former secretary to a Norwalk automobile dealer, Miss Borgia is accused of obtaining $610 from the Mansfield office of the Crawford Finance company on a false note and certificate of title to an automobile.

Judge Huston revoked the parole of John Oney, 45, of Shiloh when Oney admitted he had violated his probation by being intoxicated. He was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for one to 20 years.

Oney was placed on probation for three years in November, 1937, after pleading guilty to a charge of threatening to wound or kill.

Torrence Freeman, Mansfield WPA worker, pleaded guilty to an indictment for breaking into a grocery store at Third and Madison avenues and was put on probation for three years.

A Farmer's Diary

A Mess of Turnips.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TURNIPS are the poor relations of the garden, the lowly, hardy aftermath of a fruitful summer. When it somes to hardship, they can take it. In that way, they're inspiring.

We planted some the last of July and forgot about them. But, as Longfellow wrote about the one belonging to the immortal Mr. Finney —"they grew, and they grew, and they grew behind the barn, and the turnips did no harm." On the contrary, they covered part of the garden with a mat of green, but the weather was so dry that the yield seemed to be nothing but tops.

My wife cooked several messes of turnip greens, then snow fell and covered the wilted, half-frozen leaves. Imagine my surprise, then, when today we had a huge dish of buttered turnips for dinner. They were tender and delicious, with just that touch of bitter rootiness that whets a man's appetite this time of year.

The moisture had done the work. The snow had protected, instead of destroying. When I examined the turnip bed, I found the flattened leaf clusters a tender green in the middle, and firm, smooth turnips as big as doorknobs on many of the roots.

I pulled one up and looked at it. The tinge of pinkish blue about the globular top merged into a snowy white tap root, with many feeder rootlets. The pungence of the bruised tops mingled with the damp, woodsy fragrance of the soil. I pared the thick outer skin from the root with my penknife and crunched the raw juicy morsel with relish. It had a sweet, pleasant earthiness of taste within its strong, biting outer layer. It is the only vegetable I know that should be pared thick, not thin.

If the weather is not too cold, this hardy biennial of the mustard family will shoot up tall and slender in the spring, and bloom next summer, producing tiny seedpods.

In parts of Scotland they are a main crop. Here they add variety to farm diet, both of man and beast, and if buried in the garden will come through the winter unscathed and often bring a good price in the spring market.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

ART STUDY MEMBERS ENTERTAIN GUESTS

Have Luncheon. Christmas Program at North Lake Park Pavilion for 20 Children; Present Gifts at Affair.

SOME of the busiest women in Mansfield must be among the members of the Art Study club, for those women are always busy either individually or in groups supporting some project, arranging a party, writing or reading a paper, or otherwise encouraging civic and community progress.

Only yesterday they undertook, as an organization, to entertain 20 children from Bushnell school, at luncheon and a program. A T-shaped table was stretched through the middle of the upstairs pavilion at North Lake park for the noon day meal which was followed by carol singing, a program and the presentation of gifts.

Present Gifts.

All table decorations, to the delight of the youngsters, except napkins, were edibles. Tiny chocolate Santas, and variously shaped sugared and frosted cookies marked places for members and guests. Each child was presented with a gift from a tree which was decorated with balls, lights and candy canes.

Miss Marguerite Speas presented Dorothy Sloan in a tap number, Anita King in an acrobatic dance, and Velma King in a military routine. Ned Fort and Carolanna Keefe were presented in a reading and piano selection respectively by Alice Partello, dramatic instructor.

Committee Members.

Members of the committee in charge of the arrangements were Mrs Warren Fort, Mrs. William Keefe, Mrs. Joseph Tomlin Mrs. Harry Spangler and Mrs. Frank Leavitt. However, the way everyone hurried about serving food to the guests, distributing Christmas presents and answering questions it was evident that all the members present contributed to the affair.

The next regular meeting of the club will be Dec. 30 with Mrs David R. Talbot, Mrs. Boyd Wierman and Miss Marjorie Campbell as hostesses. Mrs. Leavitt and Mrs. Howard McClure will appear on the program.
